Helping Honduran pastors grow and minister by providing them with training

Invest. Investments.

Missions is about investing. Investing the resources that God has put at our disposal to make disciples of all nations. You and I invest our time and spiritual resources in prayer. We invest our time and spiritual giftedness in teaching, giving and encouraging.

God in his great plan is strategically equipping us and placing us where we can collaborate in this endeavor. Our goal is to glorify Him by investing in others so that they will find new life in Christ.

This investment plays out in different ways. This past Sunday, this investment resulted in 26 baptisms. Over the past year, my fellow World Reach missionaries and I have invested in the training of pastors and church leaders among the Lenca people, the largest indigenous group in Honduras. While studying with us they were convinced of the need to be baptized and make a public profession of their faith. This step of obedience is of particular importance since it is a public expression that has the potential to distance them from their family and community. One of the young ladies that was baptized shared that her mother had no problem with her attending the evangelical church, but she was given strict orders not to be baptized.

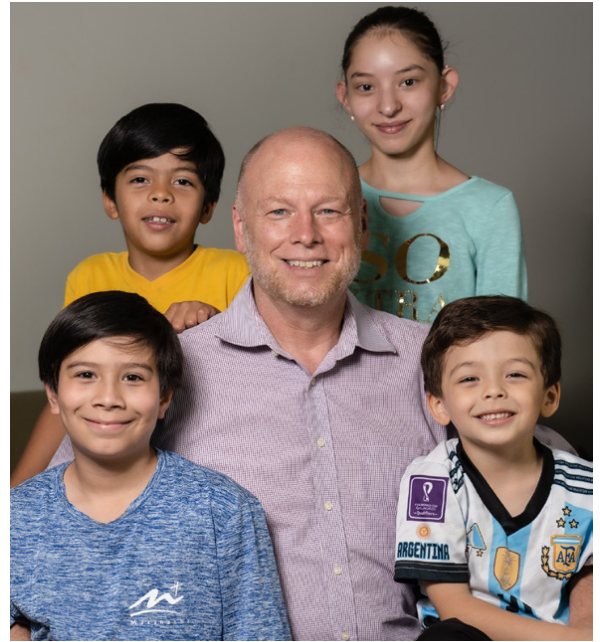

Many of the Lenca practice a syncretism of traditional religion and Catholicism. So making a public profession of faith different than those traditions is a very bold move on many levels.

You and I are part of God's strategy to share His love with these dear people and help lead them into new life in Christ.

Thank you for investing in this endeavor,

Peter & Gany

Please invest some time to pray for the following:

- Please pray that the Gospel will go out powerfully among the Lenca communities.
- Please pray for our continued teaching of pastors and church leaders among these communities. May God give us insight into how to communicate with them in culturally important ways and help them understand God's plans for them.
