Quarterly Update

Say Jambo!

Greetings to our friends and supporters! In this edition of our newsletter, we are thrilled to say “Jambo” (hello) to two new members of the Kenya Children’s Home family: our new child, Shakira, and our new social worker, Sharon! We invite you to enjoy the inspiring stories of how God has guided these individuals to be a part of this life-giving ministry!

Meet Shakira Kanja!

After facing the heartbreaking loss of her mother, Shakira has been living with her aunt, who has been struggling with kidney failure and receiving treatment. Since the first week of January, Shakira has been unable to attend school because of a lack of basic necessities. But just a few days after joining the Children’s Home, her heart has been transformed, and she is now filled with joy to be back in school and to have a place in this wonderful home.

Sharon Today

Welcome back Sharon!

“My name is Sharon Kathambi. I lost my parents at a young age and grew up as an orphan. After their passing, my grandmother took me in and did everything she could to raise me. Despite many challenges, she showed me love, strength, and the importance of trusting God even in difficult moments.

Later, I was placed at World Reach Children’s Home where I spent part of my childhood. Living in the Children’s Home opened my eyes to the struggles many children go through when they grow up without parents. Those years shaped my heart and helped me understand the value of compassion, care, and community.”

"The caregivers became a great encouragement in my life. They showed me that even when life seems unfair, God can use people to bring hope and healing. Through these experiences, I developed a deep passion for helping others who are facing difficult situations, especially children and vulnerable families. This passion led me to pursue a Diploma in Social Work. During my studies, I learned practical skills in counseling, community support, and advocacy for vulnerable people.

I believe my life journey has given me a unique understanding of the emotional and social challenges that many vulnerable individuals face. It has also given me a heart that desires to serve God by helping others find hope, dignity, and support.

I came back to World Reach seeking an opportunity to give back to the ministry. I want to use my professional skills and my personal experiences to make a positive difference in the lives of others.

My story is a testimony that even from difficult beginnings, God can raise someone to become a source of hope to others. I am honored to serve in a role where I can continue this mission of love, care, and faith." ~ Sharon Kathambi
